

For Future Reference

In the following pages, David Yee alerts us to the possible occurrence of the Large-billed Savannah Sparrow (Passerculus sandwichensis rostratus) in the Central Valley. As high-quality, published photographs of this form (species?) are relatively scarce, we here provide two photos of Large-billed Savannah Sparrows taken at the south end of the Salton Sea, Imperial County, in 2002 and 2003, in hopes they may be of use to observers on the lookout for this bird in our region.

photos ©
Kenneth Z. Kurland